100 NEWARK KIDS IN KITE CONTEST

Newark launched its public recreation program last Friday with a kite-flying contest on the local schoolgrounds.

Under Recreation Director Robert Lamp, more than 100 kites were airborne, with as many proud owners tugging at the twine. Lamp pronounced the day just windy enough for good flying.

Winners in eight classes of kites were:

Donnie Stewart, farthest-flying; William Stewart, highest flying; Michael O'Neil, biggest kite; Frank Alvarez, smallest; Anthony Soito, most unique; David McCord, most colorful; Stephen Betchart, steadiest kite; and Craig Rice, most ornate.

The kites were all home-built. School Supt. Jack MacGregor also took part, displaying a Navy rescue kite. The contest is an annual affair, but this is its first year under organized recreation supervision.

TORRID ZONE? FRIGID ZONE? OUR TOWNSHIP HAS 'EM ALL!

Zoning and future planning, headline topics for the past year in Washington Township, continued to make news this week, with the following developments:

1. Residential zoning in Adobe Acres will be set for hearing date today by the Board of Supervisors.

2. Zoning overhaul of Newark comes up before the Planning Commission April 22, and will include rezoning for a $3,000,000 shopping center proposed by Promoter Arthur Beal.

3. Final vote on prospective zoning for farms has been postponed until next Tuesday by the supervisors.

4. Public hearings on rezoning the Irvington area south of Mission Road, east of the Western Pacific tracks, to a line 2000 feet east of Durham Road will be held in Oakland April 22 and May 20.

The Adobe Acres issue is contested by John C. Houlihan, attorney for the Santa Cruz Portland Cement Company. Houlihan wants to force the commission to stick to an earlier decision in which only the land north of the Western Pacific tracks would be held for homes.

A 5-to-2 majority of the commission later voted to zone everything between the Southern Pacific tracks and Alameda Creek residential. This would require use-permits for gravel pits and rezoning for factories. Only exception was for Kraftile, which was designated "light industrial."

Beal, who showed his shopping center plan to the Newark Chamber of Commerce last month, seeking support, was still without it this week. However, he has asked the commission to rezone a 25-acre site on Thornton at Birch from residential to commercial for his project.

Also at the Newark hearing, petitions to rezone land along Cherry Avenue from industrial to residential will be considered, as well as the reverse. In addition, an overall review of Newark zoning will be given.

The agricultural-zone proposal, backed by the County Farm Bureau was postponed from today until Tuesday when Supervisor Harry Bartell said real estate interests desire more time to prepare arguments against it.

Last Monday, the Land Planning Commission of Alameda County, which numbers several real estate men in its membership, came out against the farm-zone plan.

Meantime the Planning Commission yesterday considered:

1. A 239-home tract proposed by

HIGH SCHOOL SITE PLAN WINS OKEH

First step in State approval of Washington Hi's $1,500,000 building program was taken this week when the State Department of Architecture oked the site-utilization plan for the school's annex.

Word of this development came from Principal J. V. Goold. Goold received a letter notifying him of the approval from H. L. Rowe, field agent for the department.

Next step is State approval of the preliminary building plans, which will be submitted shortly by the architectural firm of Falk & Booth, Goold said.

Construction on the site next to the present school will not be started until late this year, however.

Property assessments will be discussed here by the man who handles them, County Assessor Russell C. Horstmann, next Monday as the fourth in the popular "Women for Better Government" series.

Horstmann will speak to the

CHILD, 3, DIES IN NILES TRACT FIRE

Three-year-old Judy Marie Guzman burned to death late yesterday when her older brothers and sisters, playing in the garage, adjoining the Niles Canyon home in which she was napping, upset a can of gasoline mixing bowl in the kitchen sink, severely gashing her wrist. Blood spurted, and Mrs. Dilbeck grew faint.

Danny summoned his first-aid training, applied a tourniquet to stop the blood. Then—since the Dilbecks have no phone—ran to a neighbor's home, helped his mother to a doctor.

The physician told Mrs. Dilbeck her son's prompt action probably saved her life. A vein had been severed by the broken glass.

Lincoln to Build 106 Homes in MSJ

Plans to build 106 new homes in Mission San Jose were disclosed this week by Richard Lincoln, contractor.

Lincoln said he has purchased the southern portion of a tract originally scheduled by another builder, Charles A. Russell.

Lincoln and Russell will share drainage costs and Russell will cut his original tract to 80 homes, it is reported.

The property is located west of Bryant Street. Russell's tract has been held up for several months due to reported financing difficulties, but work was resumed on a half-dozen homes along the Irvington Road on Monday.

Lincoln already has sold 50 homes north of the Irvington Road.

The homes along Bryant Street will be similar to those.

BLOOD DONORS

Arthur Luedcke, 773 Second Street, Niles, last week gave his thirteenth pint of blood to the local Red Cross program. Luedcke's wife, Lavinia, gave her eight pint.

LUCIO WINS NEWARK FIRE JOB IN LANDSLIDE, 453 TO 186

Leonard Lucio, foundry executive, was decisively elected Newark Fire Commissioner Monday night in the most hotly contested fire district election in years, defeating Ken Foster, chemical plant employee, 453 to 186, according to an unofficial vote count.

The two candidates were seeking the post vacated by Frank Pine.

Interest in the election was reflected by the heavy vote, with 656 ballots cast out of a total of 900 registered voters. Seventeen ballots were thrown out.

The ballots were canvassed on Tuesday night and the new commission will hold its first meeting April 20.

Foster is also a former president of Newark Chamber of Commerce.

Several months ago he was a member of a Chamber of Commerce delegation which appeared before the fire commission asking it to hire a third paid fireman. The fireman subsequently was hired.

Hildegarde's Coming

Confessed "kiss slayer" of her ex-GI spouse, Hildegarde Garni Pelton, 32, is scheduled to be arraigned in Centerville Justice Court next Tuesday.

Construction on the site next to the present school will not be started until late this year, however.

A question-and-answer period is expected to produce queries on farm assessments, in relation to nearby subdivisions, currently parking interest among ranchers in this area.

Last Monday's forum was addressed by representatives of the county health, school, and probation departments, who explained how taxpayers' dollars are used in these fields.

IRVINGTON'S SHARE

The Irvington Chamber of Commerce, on motion of A. E.

Alameda, voted Tuesday to pay a

$37.50 share of the current local incorporation survey.

Decoto Quits Township C. of C.

Businessmen Claim $60 Dues "Wasted"

With a blast at what it termed "non-cooperation," Decoto this week seceded from the Washington Township Chamber of Commerce.

By unanimous vote of some 20 members present, the Decoto Chamber of Commerce voted to quit the parent organization, effective June 30.

The action was launched in a discussion of contributions to a Township-sponsored survey of incorporation, to which Decoto had refused to contribute a $20 share.

Members took turns rapping Township-wide incorporation. Then Frank Borghi, a delegate to the Township Chamber, complained:

"We've spent $180 in dues to the Township Chamber in the past three years, and we've got nothing to show for it." Others joined the fray. There were

President Manuel Hidalgo and complaints that the Township group "failed to do anything for Decoto."

At this point James Fine, a contractor-member, moved to withdraw from the Township Chamber. The motion passed unanimously. Hidalgo ordered Acting Secretary Manuel Seoane to write Township Chamber Secretary Eugene Manning advising him of the action.

Today Manning deplored the move. Said he:

"This is the first step in the opposite direction—away from solidarity in our Township. For the past three years the central chamber has provided a unified voice, a strong voice for all eight towns here, instead of the old situation of 'every man for himself.' I think the other chambers appreciate this fact, and I'm sorry Decoto doesn't."

At the Tuesday night session, Hidalgo and others indicated they are prepared to go it alone. Hidalgo named Fine chairman of a committee to study further planning for Decoto. Seoane was appointed head of another committee to handle Decoto's part in the County Fair, on a "day" which the town shares with Centerville

July 3.

Strong hints that the Decotans were displeased with the central chamber came at recent meetings when Decoto delegates, principally Borghi, besought Manning to work for a bank in their town.

Manning explained that while he can be active to get industry for a particular area, since it benefits the whole Township, he did not feel that he should work for a retail establishment for any single community over any other.

At Tuesday's meeting, Decotans said this "just shows the Township Chamber won't do anything for us."

CRUSADE NOMINEES TO BE TOLD HERE

William H. Park, general chairman of the East Bay United Crusade, will be the speaker next Wednesday at the nominating luncheon of the Washington Township Crusade.

Parks will address welfare leaders in the International Kitchen.

Maurice Marks, 1952 campaign director in the Township, will call for report of the 1953 nominating committee, headed by Bruce Michael.

Others on the committee are Allen G. Norris, William Beck, Mrs. James Robertson, Mrs. Maria Brazil and Marks.

Township residents interested in welfare and youth work are urged to attend, according to Marks.

'Everything Died': Essanay Goes

Did '3-D' Kill the Studio in Niles?

(Last in a never-before-told series on the Essanay Film studios in Niles.)

By STUART NIXON

It was too good to last.

As early as 1914, Essanay's angel, George Spoor, realized in Chicago that the Niles end of the business was in the hands of a financial cavalier.

G.M. "Broncho Billy" enjoyed the acclaim and excitement of being a top movie star. But the book-keeping bored him.

Anderson was spending more and more time in San Francisco, less and less in Niles. Tom Elliott, blacksmith and mechanic for Essanay in those days, says Anderson often didn't show up at all, "and when he did he was in a hurry." He would act or direct for an hour or two in the studio on First Street. Then roar off to San Francisco again in his Thomas Flyer.

Not satisfied with movies, Anderson bought a theater, the Gaiety, in San Francisco. There he began to stage elaborate musical comedies, using Essanay money. There were stories of temperament. One day Comedienne Marie Dressler slapped him in public and quit, wrecking the show.

This state of affairs must have disturbed Spoor's practical mind. His visits to the Coast became more frequent. Fred Rogers, then barkeep at the Wesley Hotel, recalls them thus:

"Spoor was a little round guy in a hard dicer (derby hat). Everybody hopped when he came out. The saloons were empty."

It was after one of these trips that Spoor tightened the reins on Broncho Billy. He appointed Jess Robbins, a director-cameraman, as manager of the Niles company, superseding Anderson.

Robbins promptly installed time clocks to keep tab on the help. This was unpopular, but it helped for awhile. Then Robbins left to start his own movie company. He returned only briefly when he persuaded Charlie Chaplin to work for Essanay in Niles. Chaplin made one million dollars for Essanay, here and in Los Angeles.

By the end of 1915, Essanay was making money, but the management end in Niles was very shaky. Anderson's musicals produced another shock for Niles. He decided to rehearse "The Candy Shop" here, imported two dozen chorus girls, and set up business in the studio. For five weeks, the local bucks couldn't work for courting the giddy chorines.

"It really shook the town up," says Rogers.

Anderson branched into an Indian Village at the 1915 Panama-Pacific Exposition. Bored with the 700 Westerns he had made, Broncho Billy went society, started producing booted-shirt dramas with himself as star. They flopped.

Spoor denies personal differences with Anderson. But stories persist about arguments over the huge expenses, about money which went for elaborate stage sets at the Gaiety Theater. In any event, as Lorin Abbott, boss carpenter, tells

"It was February 16, 1916—I remember it well. We started a picture in the morning. That afternoon we got a wire from Chicago to stop work. That was the end. We never made another one in Niles."

Reasons for Essanay's departure are as many and mystic as the legends about Mary Pickford and Gloria Swanson working here. Some say the European War killed overseas business and brought an end to the Niles venture. One version has it that anti-trust suits killed their monopoly on film-making equipment.

Others reason that the company was losing money. Or that Anderson and Spoor couldn't get along. Spoor, now 81, and living in Chicago, explains it another way.

Spoor was an inventor. He got into movies when a pickpocket relieved him of $90 while he was standing at a peep-show. That was in 1893, and it gave him the idea that Thomas Edison's moving pictures could appeal to a profitable audience only if projected on a screen. So he developed the first movie projector. By 1906 he owned 120 theaters. That meant he needed films to show, so in partnership with Actor-Director Anderson, he formed Essanay.

"Production by Essanay was discontinued," Spoor maintains, "because our facilities were required for development of a new type of motion picture called 'Natural Vision'."

Impatient with the limitations of the pre-war screen, Spoor was experimenting with three-dimensional films. It took him 14 years and $4,000,000 of the money he made from projectors—and from Essanay. In 1931 he had perfecting the process.

The first—and only—Natural Vision film was a sensation. Titled "Danger Lights," it occupied a 60x28-foot screen, played to packed houses in Chicago and New York. But Spoor says the threat united the producers against him, and they denied him use of their theaters. Sadly he shelved "Danger Lights" and turned from film producing.

"Now comes along television," comments Spoor, "and it upsets the smugness of the industry. So the very producing companies who banded together in 1931 and extinguished a real scientific development are at each other's throats (over 3-D)."

Whatever the reason, Essanay never reopened its Niles studio. Stark and empty, it served as a haunted house for youngsters in the early '20s. Ed Enos recalls scampering through the big structure, screaming when "prop" skeletons fell from some cobwebby closets.

Marston Dassel remembers seeing boys take cans of developed film from the vault, light a match to one end and roll the big reels blazing down the street.

Spoor came West to liquidate the company, and E.A. Ellsworth, Niles financier, handled the job. At auction George Rose bought a barrel-load of teapots and urns for $2.50. Dan Quararoli got the advertising lights off Broncho Billy's car—"enough to light my whole restaurant." And Ed Rose, auto dealer, bought the studio property in 1924 at a tax sale for around $1500.

Rose tried to interest Hollywood in reopening the big studio, but in vain. Finally in June, 1933, he ordered it torn down for salvage.

What of the men and women who made Niles such an exciting place between 1912 and 1916? Chaplin, of course, rose to stardom. Ben Turpin went on to greater things, too. But he never lost the "who cares" touch that used to convulse the Niles boys when Ben would jump in a horse-trough for laughs.

Ben liked Niles. He would stop his car in the middle of any street in Hollywood if he recognized a Niles friend. In later years, the crosseyed star used to spend his vacations here, too, at Fulton Cesari's home. Harry Cesari, Fulton's son, recalls Ben turning backflips in the kitchen. Turpin died in 1940, a film immortal.

Fred Church, Gus Carney, Vic Potel and Carl Stockdale are dead—Stockdale just last month. So is big, lovable Wallace Beery. Harry Todd, the Snakeville sheriff, died several years ago, but his wife, "Sophie Clutts," is living in Glendale.

Jess Robbins went on from directing to manufacturing machine tools in a large Los Angeles plant. Lloyd Easterday is head of San Francisco's street-cleaning department. Lorin Abbott owns a scenic studio in Oakland. Danny Kelleher is with RKO.

Most colorful of all, of course, was Anderson. Newspaper clippings trace his later career, mostly through lawsuits. After selling his interest to Spoor, Broncho Billy quit the screen.

Three months later he announced plans to build a $7,500,000 airplane factory at Sunnyvale. It never materialized. Then it was a $1,000,000 movie company at San Mateo. Ditto.

In 1920 he produced musical comedies in New York. On July 18, he was arrested for failure to pay his chorus girls. He told reporters the girls were too whimsical, that he wished he were back in Niles.

In 1924, his show "Frivolities" died in Kansas City. In 1925 he complained in print that he had been ill, broke, and out of work for seven years. From 1926 to 1927 he was the object of lawsuits by unpaid help. But in 1927 Anderson himself sued Chaplin and Spoor, claiming Chaplin made only six out of 10 films he had contracted to make, and that Spoor hadn't paid Anderson his share of those Chaplin did make.

In 1928 he was seen "trying to recoup his fortunes" at the Tia Juana racetrack by N.W. Armstrong, secretary of the San Leandro Chamber of Commerce. In 1943 he sued Paramount for $900,000 for portraying him as a "washed-up actor" in the film "Star Spangled Rhythm."

Anderson's sister managed his affairs so that he was never destitute, it seems. Until 1941, he owned and managed a large apartment house on O'Farrell Street in San Francisco. Friends said he always had a free room or meal for oldtime actors.

In 1948, Louella Parsons, who used to work for Essanay in Chicago, noted Anderson wanted to revive the Broncho Billy series with some young actor playing Broncho Billy Jr.

Since then Anderson has been dwelling, ill and obscure, in Los Angeles. How amazing it is to think that both he and Spoor—both S and A—are living yet!

Of the empire they built in Niles, only this remains:

Rotted scenery and wardrobe trunks in Chester Rose's barn; a teapot or two salvaged from the tax sale, a sepia-tinted photo of Essanay cowboys in the De Luxe Barber Shop, eight cottages on Second Street, and hoofprints in the concrete driveway on First Street that used to lead to the Essanay stable.

These—and of course memories to those old enough to remember the stirring days of 1912. Says one who does, Bert Silveira:

"It was all fun and excitement, and they didn't care what they did."

"When they left, everything was dead."

BEARCAT TRYOUTS SET FOR SUNDAY

Tryouts for the Centerville Bearcat nine will be held Sunday at 11 o'clock on the Washington Hi diamond, according to Manager Frank Mayer.

Mayer said he has lined up games for the two following Sundays with a Native Sons team from San Francisco and a Santa Cruz aggregation.

Veterans who have already turned out for practice include Stan Roderick, first base; Don Lemos, shortstop; Tony Rivers, catcher; Harold Faria, outfielder; and John Garcia, pitcher.

However, according to Mayer, several positions are "wide open" and he wants to field two nines for practice Sunday to determine his first-string roster for the coming season.

Dentist in Decoto

A new dentist, just out of the Army, has opened offices in Decoto this week.

He is Dr. William Dang, who will be located at 607 East E Street. Dr. Dang, whose family remains in Oakland until he is settled here, was released from military duty a few weeks ago after three years' service, much of it in Occupied Germany.

HUSKIES REPEAT, 2-1, OVER BELLARMINE; FACE FREMONT TODAY IN LEAGUE TILT

By BOB HIRD

Scoring two runs in the opening stanza, the Washington Hi nine scored a repeat victory here Monday over touted Bellarmine, edging the Bells 2-1. In an earlier outing the locals dumped the Bells 7-1.

After Pitcher Frank Cornell retired the first two Huskies to face him, he issued a base on balls to Left Fielder E. O. Romero. Romero then stole second and was brought home by Center Fielder Raul Orozco's single through the box. Right Fielder Ed King then drove a double deep down the left field line to bring in what proved to be the winning run.

The Bell's lone tally came in the fourth frame when Shortstop Dick Venezia belted a towering homer deep in center field. Bellarmine almost tied the contest in the seventh. With a runner on third base, Pitcher Bob Lunsford, who came on in the fifth frame, threw a wild pitch, but Catcher John Chacon hustled after the ball and threw to Lunsford, who was covering the plate for the third out.

Righthander Bob Hird, recovering from a pulled muscle in the back, threw the first four innings and received credit for his third win of the season. Lunsford threw the final three frames.

Chacon paced the Huskies at bat with two hits in three trips. Romero garnered the longest hit for the Malemutes, a triple in the third.

The Huskies look for their second league win today when they travel to Sunnyvale to face the Fremont Indians. The Indians were defeated by the Campbell Buccaneers in their league opener.

Prowler Near Niles

A prowler—probably a tramp—was reported in the Santos-Fremont Road neighborhood early Sunday.

Herman A. Mesquite, of Fremont Road, told sheriff's deputies he heard someone trying to enter his home in the pre-dawn hours. Then Mrs. Mary C. Brown of Santos Road reported odd noises. Investigation officers found someone had entered an outside shed, used a hatchet to open jars of fruit and tomatoes. Mrs. Brown said her purse, containing an undetermined sum, was missing from her home.

A search of the neighborhood failed to disclose the culprit.

LOSES LICENSE

David Rico of 703 Fifth Street, Decoto, had his driver's license suspended this week for alleged failure to show insurance after an accident.

NEW LAWYER WITH NORRIS & BROUN

Geoffrey "Jeff" Steele, 26, this week became the Township's newest attorney when Steele associated himself with the Centerville law firm of Norris & Broun.

A bachelor, Steele served in the Army during World War II, then attended the University of California and graduated from Hastings College of Law last June.

He passed the bar examinations in October, and was admitted to practice in February. For the past seven years Steele has been living in Berkeley, but moved to Centerville this week.

LOCAL GI'S AIDED DESERT ATOM TEST

Pfc. Philip L. Ayala, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ayala, Niles, and Pfc. Donald E. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Taylor of Decoto, were two of the especially-assigned Army men who participated last week in the Atomic Maneuver at Camp Desert Rock, Nev.

Privates Ayala and Taylor occupied a forward foxhole during the atomic blast and immediately after the blast charged forward in skirmishes to mop up an imaginary enemy theoretically weakened by the A-bomb blast.

Privates Ayala and Taylor are members of the Sixth Army operational staff for Desert Rock. They assist other troops from all over the country who come to the Mojave Desert for this special combat training.

Ayala is regularly assigned to the 163d Quartermaster Laundry Company. Taylor is a driver in the 412th Engineer Combat Battalion.

Initiated by the post's auxiliary were Mrs. Sally M. Ramirez, Mrs. Lucy Martinez and Mrs. Isabel Loyola.

On old redwood trees, burls may measure six feet or more in diameter and have a volume of over 10,000 board feet.

NEW MANAGER AT NILES FURNITURE

Appointment of J. F. "Frank" Brown as store manager of Niles Furniture Company was announced today by C. Walter Chrysler, store owner.

Brown has lived in Niles for the past 18 months at 720 Third Street. He formerly managed retail stores in Burlingame, Palo Alto, Reno, Winnemucca and Boulder City, Nevada.

His background also includes accounting and a stint as instructor in aeronautics at Oakland Airport.

Brown is married to the former Marion Flindt of Niles. They have two sons, David, 17, and Mitchell, who is 11.

Chrysler said appointment of Brown will enable the store to extend expanded service to its customers, especially in the drapery, carpeting and appliance departments.

V.F.W. Initiates 11

Eleven new members were initiated last week by Paul Rivers Post No. 7906, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at ceremonies in the Niles Memorial Building.

New members are Lester Medeiros, Earle Medeiros, Jewell Maps, Marcelino Ledesma, Alejandro Aranda, Ambrosio Loyola, Salvador Paniagua, Refugio Gonsalves, Robert Hernandez, William Martinez and Robert Ramirez.

Initiated by the post's auxiliary were Mrs. Sally M. Ramirez, Mrs. Lucy Martinez and Mrs. Isabel Loyola.

Centennial Plea

Centerville this week was reprobated for its alleged failure "to do more" about the Alameda County Centennial.

Doing the reproving was Publisher George Oakes. He told a session of the local chamber of commerce:

"Oakland is handling the show. Why can't we get more interest down here where the county started?"

Oakes said he, as delegate to the Centennial Commission, wants more participation in the $25,000 pageant the commission has scheduled for the County Fair in Pleasanton next June.

"What is it we're supposed to do?" inquired one member.

Oakes replied it would be "a good idea to decorate the towns," but Judge Allen G. Norris, himself vice-chairman of the Centennial Commission, said nothing is supposed to be done yet, although local people may be asked to take part in the pageant.

How to make your car and truck ride and drive easier

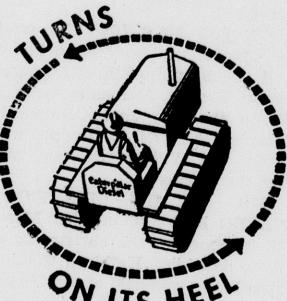

Your car and truck will roll over the bumps more smoothly; chassis bearings will last far longer if you lubricate with RPM Chassis Grease T-B. Do the job at least every 1000 miles and you'll always have a tough lubricating film on bearing surfaces that will not rupture under road shocks.

RPM Chassis Grease T-B contains special additives that help it stick on surfaces under the hardest shocks, resist moisture and reduce wear. Ask us about RPM Chassis Grease T-B in the special EZ Fill can that makes it easier to load grease guns.

A "CATERPILLAR" TRACK-TYPE TRACTOR

The heavy-duty steering clutches permit this tractor to make a full circle turn... directly on its heel under load. The turning radius of the Diesel D2, for example, is only 57'... a big advantage for working in narrow quarters or short headlands.

C. B. SNOW NEWARK'S FIRST ATTORNEY

This week boasted another "first"—its first attorney. He is Charles B. Snow, who has opened offices at 2077 Thornton Avenue, in the building owned by Edward O'Mara.

Snow has been associated for the past several months with the Centerville firm of Norris & Broun, but decided to branch out for himself.

"I have confidence in Newark's future," Snow says, "and I decided it would be the best place in the Township to locate."

Stone is a graduate of the University of California-Hastings College of Law in the class of 1951. He was admitted to practice of law in 1952.

Stone is married and currently living in Centerville. He and Mrs. Stone, a former Mill Valley girl, expect their first child next month.
